Liquor licensing fact sheet

Breaches under the

Liquor Control Reform Act 1998 (from 1 July 2018)

The Liquor Control Reform Act 1998 (the Act) provides for the issue of infringement notices for specified breaches. Infringement notices may be issued to licensees, underage persons or any person breaching specified sections of the Act.

An infringement notice is a fine issued as an alternative to having the matter heard before a court. The amount of the infringement notice is set at a figure lower than the maximum penalty that can be imposed by a court.

Licensees should be aware that payment of a fine may subsequently be taken into account in any disciplinary proceedings of the Victorian Commission for Gambling and Liquor Regulation (VCGLR) seeking suspension or cancellation of the licence.

NOTE: All government fees and fines are indexed annually. The dollar amounts shown in this document will change each financial year and have been rounded to the nearest whole dollar amount.

Compliance history risk fee

Certain breaches of the Act from the previous year may add additional costs to your liquor licence renewal fee. This is called a compliance history risk fee. Although there are many types of breaches under the Act, only six of these will trigger a compliance history risk fee. These breaches are listed in the table below.
